Homecoming Concert 2005

LSCOBA Homecoming Concert 2005 took place on May 29, 2005 at La Salle College School Hall in the form of a multi-programmed concert. Featuring performances from cross generations of La Salle boys, classes of 1960's to 2016 — (YES, Class 2016, as some of them are LSPS P.1 students!) ; parents and teachers. All 300 plus attendance were treated with a multiple facets of musical pieces; East and West; solos to full scale choirs; classical to modern; hymns to rock; vocal to instruments ...etc, and everything in between. On the other hand, we had King's College Harmonica Band reminiscing LSC's great harmonica band in the 1960's and 70's; a snack bar for the minors and wine tasting corner for the adults. To make the night more unforgettable, Bishop Joseph Zen paid us a surprise visit and went on stage to give a blessing to all of us. The fun-filled night with packed performances ran deep into the night leaving us nothing but fond memories.

This event wouldn't have been possible without the support from the entire La Salle Family including parents, teachers, LSPS & LSC students, young and seasoned old boys. The LSCOBA would like to take this chance to thank the entire La Salle Family who supported the event and wish to see you all again next year.

創意無限的喇沙仔

為了讓所有傷殘人士可以同樣享用價廉物美的義肢，如正常人走路，製作費大約二千港元的 Artificial Leg (人工智能腳) 是基於這個理由而發明出來的。而這項富於愛心的發明使其發明者禰彥勳奪得今年由香港新一代文化協會舉辦的香港賽馬會青少年科技創新大賽中學科技創新成果(發明組)第一等獎及個人創作大獎。

創作靈感來自日常生活

現年就讀於喇沙書院中六的禰彥勳自小就喜愛玩機械人和組合式的玩具(如 Lego 和四驅車)，和看科幻性的電影。升上中三時，他讀過物理、化學和生物科的課本後便對科學有着濃厚興趣。升上了中四理科班後，他便一邊學習一邊運用他所學的知识再加上日常生活的所見所聞來創作一些新發明。中五那年他本已計劃研製拍翼式飛行器，但由於中學會考日漸逼近，不得不把這個夢想擱置！不過，中學會考並沒有熄滅他的發明夢想之火。會考過後，他從報章上留意到很多第三世界國家的人民因誤中第二次世界大戰遺留下來的地雷而失去下肢，同時市面上能讓傷殘人士用得舒適的義肢又是非常昂貴，於是便再次亮起發明之光，設計出製作費大約二千港元的 Artificial Leg (人工智能腳)。

Articial Leg

努力奮鬥、永不放棄和 大膽嘗試就是發明創新 的不二法門

在研究製作其間，禰彥勳發明之心曾動搖過着這個設計可行嗎?是否有足夠的力去推動?……信奉天主教，抱着喇沙精神“永不言敗之信念”和有家人支持的他並沒有因此放棄，他心信天主會給他一個明確指引，並不斷努力嘗試，改良，再嘗試，再改良直到最後的一剎那。最終，他把所有問題迎刃而解，更成功奪標!

補充:

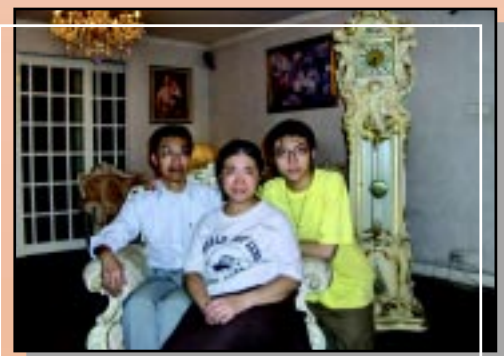

本人將於今年八月十四至二十日代表香港到北京參加第 20 屆全國青少年科技創新大賽。另外，本人亦有機會於明年五月代表香港到美國印地安納州參加 Intel International Science and Engineering Fair 2006.

Interview Workshop

An interview workshop for the F.7 boys was held on 14th May 2005 in the Large Lecture Theatre. It was a joint venture between LSCOBA and the Career Team of LSC, (headed by Ms. Cecilia Tang). Over 40 boys attended.

The program was started off with two short lectures. Lawrence Ng (1977) explained what an interview was and Mark Huang (1985) talked about non-verbal skills in interview. The boys then attended three mock interviews:

1st Mock Interview: Group Interview for Medical School

Thomas Chiu (1987)
Constantine Au (1987)
Clement Tam (1994)

2nd Mock Interview: Individual Interview - School of Architecture

Jeff Tung (1978)
KF Chan (1980)

3rd Mock Interview: Group Interview for Business School

Harry Chu (1987)
Richard Woo (1987)
Clement Tam (1994)

An old boy was assigned to comment on each interview. The day was ended with a session of Q&A. Both the boys and the old boys learned a lot from the workshop. The Career Team and LSCOBA agreed that this workshop should be held every year.

Mr. LO Chi Lik Peter (1966) was elected as the President of The Law Society of Hong Kong on 30th May, 2005. Mr. Lester HUANG (1977) was elected as one of the Vice-Presidents on 8th June, 2005.

Mr. MONG Tak Yeung (1979), President of LSCOBA 1997-99, was conferred as Honorary Fellow by the Chinese University of Hong Kong on 23rd May, 2005 in recognition of his significant contributions to the University and the community. Here is the citation from the CUHK:

Mr David Mong Tak Yeung describes the challenge facing him as Vice-Chairman of the Shun Hing Group of companies in the words of an old Chinese saying: "It is hard enough to build a business, but it is even more difficult to maintain the business and keep it prosperous." Mr Mong's father, Dr. William Mong Man Wai, started Shun Hing in 1953 and built it up with spectacular success into one of Hong Kong's major business enterprises. David Mong now plays his own distinctive role in the business, building on the solid foundation of his father's example and counsel. It is a role that complements his father's: where William Mong's motto was, "Rome wasn't built in one day," David Mong's motto is, "Rome wasn't built by one person."

Mr Mong learned the importance of teamwork partly at home and partly from La Salle College, with its emphasis on team sports and never-say-die spirit. At UCLA he learned the tough intellectual discipline of electrical engineering and also the importance of self-management. When he finished his Bachelor of Science degree, his father sent him to Osaka ostensibly to attend a meeting at the headquarters of Matsushita Electric Industrial Company Limited. He ended up staying four years, learning not only fluent Japanese but every aspect of the electronics business from the inside. He learned about engineering and manufacturing processes; logistics, transactions, product design and retail. In short, he learned everything Panasonic's sole distributor in Hong Kong could know about their products.

But in Japanese management style he learned something even more important, which built on his experience at La Salle. At Matsushita all members of the company looked far beyond their individual job descriptions. They identified with the project and beyond that with the enterprise as a whole. After taking an MBA at Santa Clara University, Mr Mong finally took his place at Shun Hing and began to bring his own experience to bear in the task of maintaining the business and keeping it prosperous. He quickly showed his ability to articulate the strategic directions of the company, which he formulated in terms of "total quality management" (TQM). Here again Mr Mong built on the traditions of the business established by his father. The very name "Shun Hing" insists that "trust" and "prosperity" are intimately linked: those who prosper are those who have built trust. Trust is built on a dedication to quality. Mr Mong partly sees his task as ensuring that these founding values inspire every member of the company. On the walls at company headquarters in Tsim Sha Tsui you will find cartoons, affectionately portraying Mr Mong by his nickname "Q Sir," or Master of Quality. Beside them are Mr Mong's mottos, annual themes of his TQM efforts. They say such things as, "If you can do better, why stop here?" His aspiration is not merely to maintain the business but to move it up to another level.

Shun Hing's respected name is also associated with its well-known Education and Charity Fund. Mr Mong is the Chairman of the Fund, which has donated more than $400 million to various projects that have helped people in Hong Kong, Mainland China and overseas. The donations have benefited education, medical services, sports, arts and culture, environmental protection and community services. The Fund has been generous to all levels of education. Among the many projects Mr Mong has supported is a reading programme for primary and secondary students it has co-partnered with the (former) Education Department. However, the bulk of the Fund's support has been for tertiary education. Almost every tertiary institution in Hong Kong, and universities as far afield as Cambridge and Nanjing, have been beneficiaries of the Shun Hing Education and Charity Fund.

The Chinese University of Hong Kong has benefited in many ways from the Fund's generosity. The William M W Mong Engineering Building, the Mong Man Wai Building and the Institute of Mathematical Sciences, among many other projects, have enjoyed Shun Hing's magnificent support. As Chairman of the Fund, Mr Mong takes a personal interest in every project. At the recent Chinese Universities Shakespeare Festival Mr Mong came in person to present prizes of electronic equipment donated by the Fund to the student actors and directors who took part. He took delight in witnessing the students' delight.

Mr Mong is a staunch believer in the educational value of a degree in engineering in teaching students to think analytically about problems. In order to help engineering at the Chinese University to maintain the highest standards of excellence, Mr Mong contributes his time and expertise as a Member of the Faculty Advisory Board and as founding Chairman of the Advisory Board of the Shun Hing Institute of Advanced Engineering. He is also a member of the Advisory Committee of the University's Institute of Mathematical Sciences.

Mr Chairman, Mr David Mong Tak Yeung is a distinguished entrepreneur, philanthropist and supporter of higher education, and it is my honour to present him to you for the award of an Honorary Fellowship.

LSCOBA 2005 SUMMER GOLF TOURNAMENT

All winners are happy with the results.

LSCOBA 2005 SUMMER GOLF TOURNAMENT

at Zhuhai Golden Gulf Golf Club was held on 27 May 2005. We took the earliest ferry at 7:30 a.m. to Zhuhai, only to find that the bus from the golf club did not show up at the ferry terminal. When we finally arrived at the main entrance of the clubhouse by ourselves, the golf club representative was waiting there to apologize repeatedly to us for the “no show” and took care of all the taxi fares.

Despite the hiccups, a total of 28 old boys turned up and all enjoyed the golf course which was in excellent condition. Taking into account the daily thunderstorm during that week, we were very lucky to be blessed by Mother Nature again and our golf round was only suspended for about 15 minutes or so by the rain but the weather was otherwise perfect for golf.

The winners were as follows :-

Champion: John Ribeiro (1978)

2nd : Michael Tse (1975)

3rd: David Fu (1981)

Best Score: John Ribeiro (1978)

Best Front-9: Davis Leung (1979)

Best Back-9: Anthony Lam (1984)

Longest Drive: Roy Ma (1984)

Nearest Pin: Nicholas Wong (1983), Andrew Chan (1977), John Ribeiro (1978), Michael Tse (1975)

According to the La Salle Golfers “local” rules, we had donations from John Ribeiro (HK$2,750) and Michael Tse (HK$2,000) to the golfers’ fund for scoring so well.

During our lunch, our keen supporter George Chan (1978) treated everyone with beers and drinks to celebrate his hole-in-one made a couple of months ago. Accordingly, more surplus was left from this event for LSCOBA. Thank you again, George.

As usual, I would also like to thank Thomas Tung (1977) for acting as the official scorer and photographer. See you all in our next tournament.
